

The AI Act contains administrative fines that vary by infringement type. The most serious infringements, including prohibited AI practices, may lead to the highest fines. Other breaches, such as non-compliance with obligations for high-risk AI systems or providing incorrect information to authorities, have different fine ceilings. The exact amount depends on the circumstances, gravity, duration and size of the undertaking.