

The endorsed WP29 transparency guidelines stress that privacy information should be concise, intelligible, easily accessible and written in clear and plain language. Layered notices can help, but the first layer should contain key information and direct people to more detail. For AI systems, vague statements such as 'we use data to improve services' are usually not enough.